Custom Travel Planning

This option is for the any traveler who wishes to be part of the planning process for their trip to Costa Rica. If our pre-designed packages aren't exactly what you are looking for, help us create the ultimate trip for you and your traveling partners to Costa Rica.

Focus is birding!!!

If you want to come to Costa Rica to bird, that is what we do best! We choose destinations and accommodations based on what a place has to offer; access to trail systems, quality of birds, ecosystem, etc. We DO NOT choose a destination based on false reputation, advertising, or marketing gimmicks!

We divide our trips into three categories of birders: beginners, intermediate and advanced birders.

This is to help the participants get the most out of their birding trip. The focus, topic, or pace is completely different if you are birding with someone who is new to birding verses someone who is not only experienced, but has been birding in the tropics on a previous trip. Keeping all of the variables in mind of what can make an outstanding birding experience we feel this plays an important role in the key to success. There is probably a very fine line between what defines a beginner, intermediate, and advanced birder, but we will list a few suggestions to help classify yourself.

Beginner: new to birding, possibly 1st group trip, still learning the basics, prefer to move at a slower pace.

Intermediate: birding for several years, familiar with identification terms, and feels comfortable moving on a faster pace.

Advanced: birding for more than 5 years, preferably have been birding in the tropics or Costa Rica previously, familiar with bird calls and wishes to improve his/her skill on the neotropics.

Master: Focus on scientific aspect of birding, natural history and future investigation projects. This trip will be lead by a career ornithologist.
